The Devonshire Collection

MANY who read this will remember the previous exhibition of 114 drawings from Chatsworth which was shown in London at the Royal Academy in 1969, after a tour in America and Canada. In my introduction to the catalogue of this exhibition I wrote on the history of the collection at some length and those who would like more information than it is possible to include in this short note should refer to this.

Considered as a whole the splendid collection of drawings by old masters, acquired mainly by the 2nd Duke, son of the builder of the
